CER estimate of private firms on contract with charters by the fall of 1998: over 70 (based on forecast of new laws taking effect, companies growing and expanding their contracting. The forecast also includes state for-profit operations not included above).

¹ Other small for-profit schools exist in charter schools states. For example, Excel Education Centers operates 6 charter schools in Michigan, The ATOP Academy in Arizona, run by Ray Jackson, is incorporated as a tax-paying firm. Many schools also contract with non-profit firms such as the Virginia based Core Knowledge Foundation (www.coreknowledge.org) and the California based Options for Youth.
